PROVIDENCE – Providence Business News has selected Day One Executive Director Peg Langhammer as the 2020 Career Achiever and Brown Medicine CEO Ann M. Kashmanian as the 2020 Outstanding Mentor for the publication's annual Business Women Awards program.

Career Achiever: Peg Langhammer

Langhammer has served as Day One's executive director for four decades, leading the lone organization in Rhode Island specifically organized to deal with the issue of sexual violence as a community concern. She is a past board president of the National Children's Alliance, and was vital in establishing the state's Child Advocacy Center that changed how sexual abuse is handled in Rhode Island.

Langhammer also recently served as the lead in working with the Rhode Island Senate and House leadership to pass a bill extending the civil statute of limitations from seven years to 35 years for cases of child sexual abuse.
